DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In regards to claims 6 and 7, it is improper to use the term "comprises" (open ended) instead of "consisting of.", in Markush claims. Ex parte Dotter, 12 USPQ 382 (Bd. App. 1931),

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Dai et al. (US 6,346,189).

Regarding claims 1 and 2, Dai discloses a method of manufacturing an electronic device comprising the steps of providing a substrate on which a pair of electrically conductive islands (i.e., electrodes) are arranged, and arranging a carbon nanotube to electrically connect the islands (Column 2, lines 40-44).

Regarding claim 3, Dai discloses a method wherein the carbon nanotubes are formed by CVD method (Column 2, lines 56-63).

Regarding claims 4 and 5, Dai discloses a method further comprising a step of providing a catalyst particle on one of the electrodes (Column 2, lines 26-32).

Regarding claims 6 and 7, Dai discloses a method wherein the catalyst particle comprises iron, cobalt or nickel (Column 2, lines 33-39).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dai et al. (US 6,346,189).

Regarding claims 8 and 9, Dai discloses a method as claimed except for the limitation of a diameter of the catalyst particle being not more than  $5 \times 10^{-8}$  m, or alternatively, not less than  $1 \times 10^{-9}$  m. The diameter of the nanotube is controlled by the diameter of the catalyst particle used in the process, accordingly, one of ordinary skill in the art would reasonably expect to optimize the particle size of the catalyst to achieve the desired diameter of the carbon nanotube structure. It has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a diameter of the catalyst particle being not more than  $5 \times 10^{-8}$  m, or alternatively, not less than  $1 \times 10^{-9}$  m, since optimization of workable ranges is considered within the skill of the art.

Other Prior Art Cited

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
